| BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF SUPPLIES OR SERVICES REQUIRED AND THE INTENDED USE:Repair services are required for a FLIR-manufactured device that has already been sent to FLIR for initial diagnostic evaluation. The required effort includes evaluation confirmation, repair, replacement of any failed proprietary parts, functional testing, calibration, optical alignment, laser testing as applicable, and return of the unit with supporting repair documentation. Upon completion of repair, the device will be returned to service for operational mission use. The exact mission application should be described by the requiring activity consistent with OPSEC and local policy.                                                                                                                    |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |

| RATIONALE FOR JUSTIFICATION TYPE SELECTED ABOVE TO INCLUDE RELEVANT INFORMATION GAINED THROUGH YOUR MARKET RESEARCH TO SUPPORT THE JUSTIFICATION TYPE:FLIR is the OEM and only authorized repair source for this device. FLIR does not authorize third-party repair vendors, and use of any other source could void warranties and create technical and regulatory risk, including possible ITAR concerns as applicable. FLIR is also the only manufacturer of the proprietary parts required for repair and the only source able to provide the required testing, calibration, optical alignment, laser testing, and repair certification. The unit has already been shipped to FLIR, diagnosed, and entered into the OEM repair process. Therefore, only FLIR can meet the Government's minimum needs. |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
